The details of resolutions regarding the basic policies as of the end of the fiscal year under review and an overview of the operation status of internal control systems for the fiscal year under review are as follows:

I. Basic policy for developing internal control systems

In an effort to embody KHI's management philosophy, which is indicated in the Group Mission (missions and roles which must be carried out) "Kawasaki, working as one for the good of the planet" (Enriching lifestyles and helping safeguard the environment: Global Kawasaki), "Kawasaki Value," "The Kawasaki Group Management Principles" and "The Kawasaki Group Code of Conduct," the KHI Group develops and maintains internal control systems to ensure formation of proper organizational structures, development of company rules and regulations, dissemination of information and proper execution of operations. We continue to improve understanding and awareness of compliance through ongoing education and training activities for various types of legal compliance and also monitor operational status.

- (iv) We work to enhance compliance systems by establishing the whistle-blowing system to report information regarding compliance breaches.
- (v) Executive Officers who are delegated to execute business operations within an appropriate scope are appointed at Board of Directors meetings. Meanwhile by appointing outside directors (independent officers stipulated in the Regulations of the Tokyo Stock Exchange) who are not likely to have any conflicts of interest with any general shareholder, the Company enhances the supervisory and monitoring functions of the Board of Directors for overall management. In addition, by appointing outside auditors (independent officers stipulated in the Regulations of the Tokyo Stock Exchange) who are not likely to have any conflicts of interest with any general shareholder, the Company ensures the objectivity and neutrality of the management monitoring function by the Board of Corporate Auditors, and enhances the monitoring function.

1. The amounts presented are rounded down to the nearest unit.
2. Payments for contract adjustment for commercial aircraft jet engines under non-operating expenses were recorded since temporary expenses in association with the contract with an aircraft maker were to be incurred in the engine program in which the Company has participated. These expenses incurred arose due to diversion of some engines to be delivered to the aircraft maker to spare engines for flight support.
3. The extraordinary loss incurred on termination of a shipbuilding contract for an offshore service vessel was largely attributable to inventory valuation losses and a write-off of trade receivables due to the contract's termination.

(Notes to Financial Instruments)

1. Matters regarding financial instruments

KHI Group raises necessary funds, in light of its business plans; for long-term working capital and capital expenditure funds the Group predominantly raises funds through bank loans and issuance of corporate bonds, for short-term working capital it raises funds through bank loans and issuance of short-term bonds (electronic commercial paper), and so forth. Temporary surplus funds are invested in highly secure financial assets. We use derivatives to avoid risks described hereunder and do not engage in speculative transactions.

Operating receivables, namely, trade receivables are exposed to counterparty credit risk. The currency exchange risk of the debts and credits in foreign currencies which arise from global business operations is hedged by using foreign exchange forward contracts, and so forth in principle against the net amount of the debts and credits in the foreign currency. Investments in securities are mainly shares of corporations which we have business dealings with, and of these investments, those shares that are listed are exposed to the risk of market price fluctuations.

Most trade payables, which are operating liabilities, have maturities of less than one year. Some of those are denominated in foreign currencies due to the import of materials, and so forth, and although they are exposed to the risk of currency fluctuation, most are within the limit of the balance of accounts receivable in the same foreign currency. Debts payable that are composed of borrowings and corporate bonds are raised for the purpose of securing working capital and capital investments, and the longest maturity from the date of balance sheet is about 20 years. Some of those instruments have floating interest and are denominated in foreign currencies and are therefore exposed to the risk of interest rate and currency exchange fluctuations, however we hedge those risks as required by using derivatives transactions (interest rate swap transactions and currency swap transactions).

Derivative transactions are transactions which include exchange forward contracts and currency options and currency swap transactions for the purpose of hedging exchange fluctuation risks of the debts and credits in foreign currencies, and interest rate swap transactions and so forth for the purpose of hedging interest fluctuation risks of debts payable. Details of hedging instruments, hedged items, hedging policies, assessment of hedging effectiveness of hedge accounting are stated in "3. Significant accounting policies,

(7) Method of significant hedge accounting” of “Notes to the basis for preparation of consolidated financial statements” described above.

2. Matters concerning market value, etc. of financial instruments

The prices recorded in the consolidated balance sheet, market values and the difference between those as of the end of this consolidated fiscal year are as follows.

(*) Figures which are posted as liabilities are shown in [].

(Note 1) Matters concerning the method for calculating the market value of financial instruments and marketable securities and derivatives transactions

(1) Cash on hand and in banks

These instruments can be settled within short term and the market value is roughly equal to book value, therefore the fair market value is stated at book value.

(2) Trade receivables

Trade receivables are grouped into a specified period, and are stated at market value calculated by the discount rate, which takes into account the respective period to maturity and credit risk.

(3) Investments in securities

The market value for these securities is stated at the price listed on the exchange.

(4) Trade payables, (5) Electronically recorded obligations, (6) Short-term debt and current portion of long-term debt, (7) Current portion of bonds

These instruments can be settled within short term and market value is roughly equal to book value, therefore the fair market value is stated at book value.

(8) Bonds payable

The fair market value of these instruments is stated at the market value.

(9) Long-term debt, less current portion

The market value of long-term debt is determined by discounting the total of principal and interest by the interest rate on similar new debt.

(10) Derivatives transactions

The market value of derivatives is stated at the forward exchange rate or the price offered by the trading financial institution.

(Note 2) Financial instruments whose market value is deemed extremely difficult to ascertain

Shares of affiliates, investments in affiliates and unlisted stocks, and investments in silent partnerships (amount recorded in the consolidated balance sheet was ¥83,725 million) are not included in the table above, as it is deemed to be extremely difficult to ascertain fair market value because those instruments have no market prices, and it is not possible to estimate their future cash flows.

(Notes to Per Share Information)

1. Net assets per share ¥ 2,789.99
2. Net income per share ¥ 173.09

(Note) The Company consolidated 10 ordinary shares into 1 ordinary share effective October 1, 2017. Net assets per share and net income per share were calculated on the assumption that the share consolidation took place at the beginning of the consolidated fiscal year under review.

(Damage caused to NIPPI Corporation by snowfall)

The heavy snowfall on February 15, 2014 caused a hangar roof in Atsugi Works of NIPPI Corporation, which is KHI's consolidated subsidiary, to collapse, causing damage to aircrafts of the Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force that was undergoing regular maintenance. The Company and NIPPI Corporation pursued discussions on handling of this matter with the Ministry of Defense. Nevertheless, in July 2017, the Ministry of Defense set off ¥1.9 billion against the Company's right to charge to the ministry (government), claiming that the ministry sustained losses of the same amount. Since the Company cannot accept the claim of the Ministry of Defense and the offsetting, the Company pressed the ministry for payment of 1.9 billion yen, which was set off. However, the Ministry of Defense refused the payment, and therefore the Company filed a lawsuit seeking payment of the amount with the Tokyo District Court in October 2017. Depending on the future outcome of the lawsuit, operating results of the KHI Group may be affected.
